New heads grace old departments

Five departments have gained new heads or acting heads with the coming of the new quarter, according to President Robert E. Kennedy. Dr. James T. Culbertson, Dr. John J. Kane, Mary Lou White, Dr. Robert A. Christiansen, and Dr. Robert H. Frost all were appointed to their new duties from other positions on the faculty.

Dr. Culbertson is the new head of the Philosophy Department after being acting head of the department since its inception in July. A graduate of Yale University, Culbertson has been a member of the faculty since 1963.

Dr. Kane succeeds Leon F. Osteyee as head of the Mechanical Engineering Department. Osteyee asked to be returned to full time teaching duties. Kane, graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and University of Pittsburgh, has taught at the University of Pittsburgh and the University of Southern California and was an engineer for Westinghouse Electric Corporation and Aerospace Corporation.

Miss White, graduate of Oregon State University and Washington State University, heads up the Women's Physical Education Department after being its acting head since the separation of the sexes in mid-1970. Miss White has been a member of the faculty here since 1961.

Dr. Frost replaces Dr. Woodford E. Bowls, who asked to return to full time teaching, as head of the Physics Department. Frost, member of the faculty since 1963, is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley.

Dr. Christiansen has been appointed acting head of the Child Development Department to replace Dr. Marie S. Pfeiffer, who has resigned from the faculty. Christiansen is a graduate of both the University of Utah and Brigham Young University.

Krejsa counsels council

Richard Krejsa, biological science instructor here, is an individual very much aware and concerned with the pollution problems of this community.

Monday, Jan. 18, Krejsa confronted the San Luis Obispo city councilmen, reminding them that in December, 1969, he brought a petition with signatures asking the council to let their views on the SLO creek and its distributaries be known.

"You made it known that you had an active interest," Krejsa said. "Then oil began to flow into the creeks. There were numerous complaints filed, but nothing was done. Suggestions were listed. Mayor Kenneth Schwartz made a list of proposals for a multiple usage of the SLO creek—as a natural channel, natural habitat, natural park element and pedestrian ways.

"It is one year later, and except for few actions, there has been no movement or progress that have been taken. Direct some publicity to the people to stop them from polluting SLO. Enlighten us—gentlemen, it is time for your annual report to your citizens."

Mayor Kenneth Schwartz responded, "We can appreciate the impatience of many. It is necessary to recognize the law and development of a community. There has to be a change of heart in SLO with respect to natural resources. People are more aware because of the 1969 flood. A slow change is taking place."

"The council will have to find the courage to pass more ordinances and get more money. We have to make people aware of what they have and appreciate it. Recognize that the city owns very little of the creek and there is a limitation of ownership."

Schwartz continued, "There are several things that have happened: mandatory garbage, the city engineer has made routine surveys, and an ecology committee has developed."

"We came as public conscience. We realize there are expenses," Krejsa said.

Friday, 7:30 p.m., Kenneth Blackman, Santa Rosa's city manager, the man responsible for preparing the plans for preserving the city's creek system, will address the interested public at the SLO city hall.

'I want to come into your life'

by Paul Tokunaga

Love is more than making it between the sheets. It is more than grooving on her body—it is more than wearing his ring—and it's more than what you and I for blank-teen years have made it out to be.

Love—a real love—is what Dick Day laid on 400 people Wednesday night in the Environmental Engineering Auditorium. For 60 minutes, the traveling representative for Campus Crusade for Christ nitty-grittled on the type of life and love he has experienced throughout his own life.

Using S-E-X as his catalyst, Day, in his stepping-out shoes, stated, "I like talking about sex... it's a pretty groovy topic!" During the next 50 minutes, he attempted to prove it.

Day related three kinds of love:

He spoke on the misconceptions that society has built around sex during the ages. "A nice proper woman," said Day, as he turned back the clock 100 years, "had nothing to do with sex." He added that while the ladies remained pure and chaste, their men were busy chasing their mistresses. He placed the blame on archaic church ideology: "Sex was that naughty, no-no subject that you just didn't talk about. They put so much religious pressure on the days of the week that it was almost impossible to find a day for sex."

Day's sex ideology: "God grooves on sex—He gave it to you and me as an object lesson to teach us love. God didn't make any mistakes when He made sex."

He touched on an incident that spoke of how man abuses the beauty of sex. He related how fellow after fellow began to date a well-endowed girl for reasons that didn't remain too secretive for long. The girl, today, much wiser but much bitter, said, "I am now learning to hate what I want to love—a man."

He continued on how man has distorted the true meaning of sexual freedom. "Real sexual freedom," he stated, "is not going out to satisfy your drive like an animal. Real sexual freedom is being able to have it when you want it, and to take it away when you don't really need it. I feel that sex should only be done in the context of love."

Day on pre-marital sex: "God wants us to get the maximum out of love... and He wants us to get the maximum out of sex."

He doesn't want us to dilute it."

"The first type is, 'I love you... if... if I can derive some satisfaction from you.' He gave an example of this kind of 'love' that he has seen frequently. "The guy says, 'If you really love me, you'll go to bed with me.' 'The girl says, 'If I didn't go to bed, I'd have lost him, and I want to marry him.' I don't think we can call this love, but lust."

Number two is, "'I love you... because you can do something for me... because we have something in common... because I think we are on the same vibrations.' This type of love is still a conditional type of love."

Day then stated the formula for the most sought-after love in the world today. "I love you... period. This love is unconditional—it is saying 'I love you for being you. It's a love that wants to give rather than receive. It's a love that wants to provide. It's a love that wants to protect. This is the basis of love where a real relationship can be meaningful. This type of love is not a force or a thing, but a person... and that person is Jesus Christ."

"Jesus is telling us, 'I love you right where you are and just as you are.'"

Day challenged the audience: "How can you love someone else when you can't even love yourself? We are really hung up on ourselves. Who is your number one critic? I'll tell you who it is—you!"

He then offered another deep challenge. "Try taking Jesus at His word—ask Him into your heart. One of the neatest things about Jesus—He forgives you. He can't restore physical virginity but He can restore your spiritual virginity. This same Jesus is saying, 'I want to come into your life.'"

Men-choose your essay!

Campus engineers are sponsoring an essay contest with $450 in prize money for engineers and non-engineering students.

Two prizes, $150 for first place and $75 for second, will be awarded in each of the two divisions. These divisions will be for engineering students who are to relate the essay to engineering and those in non-engineering who do not.

All entries are to be turned into the Computer Science building room 115 by Feb. 8. The title and name of the individual submitting the entry should be on the title page. In this way the judges will be able to remove the title page and avoid any further recognition while judging.

Poisonous weed blamed in Utah

Antelope Valley, Utah UPI — More than a thousand sheep belonging to Dan and Clarence Ingraham of Nephi, Utah died during the past week.

A spokesman for Governor Calvin Rampton said today that initial speculation blamed the death on a poisonous weed growing in the region, but two state veterinarians have been flown in along with veterinarians from the Federal Bureau of Land Management to determine the cause.

Unwarranted criticism

Editor:

I have just finished reading an editorial that appeared in several State College student newspapers advocating the resignation of Chancellor Glenn Dumke.

As President of the Council of California State College Alumni Associations, I cannot speak for all the members of our organization. However, I feel it should be noted that the Chancellor has provided leadership for the State Colleges in times of dynamic growth and during an era when higher education has been subjected to undue public criticism for the actions of a minute minority of its faculty and students.

If now is the time to criticize, let us denounce the students who have brought violence to our campus, the politicians who have made higher education a political football for their own self-edification, or even the public who has negatively stereo-typed higher education for the actions of a few whom they saw on television.

If any individual of our State is truly concerned about education, let him stand up and demand that our legislature finance educational institutions so as to ensure the availability of quality education to all our citizens.

On one hand we must restore the confidence of educators that the people of California are committed to quality education. On the other hand we must remove the public's fear by proving that examination of widely divergent views is not a contradiction of American ideals and values.

This is the task that lies before us. It can best be accomplished by all concerned reaffirming the commitment to quality higher education in California.

Very truly yours,
Dennis J. Murray

Dining dilemma

Editor:

It is unbelievable that, in a college of this caliber, there exists a student who still fails to use his brain. Mr. Doshi evidently rushed to write a viperous letter in Thursday's Mustang Daily without thinking about what he wrote.

The dining Hall uses dishes and glasses which the Snack Bar does not. Thus if a tray is left in the Snack Bar, someone must deliver the dishes to the Dining Hall. If many people leave trays, we would have to hire another person to perform this shuttle service, but this takes money. The students money—your money, Mr. Doshi—and more important to me, my money.

It might be argued that the students would return their own trays. One look in the Snack Bar should convince anyone that this would not occur. If people will not walk 15 feet to return a tray, is it reasonable to expect they will walk 100 feet? Please, Mr. Doshi, grow up and think before you suggest a course of action which will be followed by others of your ilk (i.e. nonthinkers). Not all rules exist to make life miserable.

Thank you,
Philip B. Wershba

Ironical all stars

Editor: Lee Antoine's doubts about the system used for choosing All Stars in the basketball tournament are surely not new. Almost every "all-this" and "all-that" is questioned by someone. It recalls a high school tournament in Oregon a few years ago where a certain center was named an Honor like Jackson's and the irony of it was that he hadn't even played! The programs had been printed before this center had been found ineligible and "politics" did indeed decide the honor. Doesn't this whole business of "all stars" amount to a lot of nonsense, then? Let's do away with it as unrealistic and childish.

Studying for tests is so much easier now. And research papers used to be the bane of my existence. Now the research is the easy part.

Until I took the course I didn't understand that slower reading could actually hinder my comprehension. My comprehension increased along with my speed.

Everyone's different I guess. But I showed improvement right away. The course really helped me from the beginning.

I now read 5 times faster than I did when I enrolled in your Reading Dynamics course. Your course brought home to me how absorbing and enjoyable even compulsory reading can be when it's done right.

Ron Schwartz

Reading Dynamics is a 1978 skill. A graduate of the course seems to have a vital edge in any field of competition which involves reading material. To put it simply, the sports section is no longer the limit.

Glen Richardson

I heard that some of the students can read 10 times faster than when they started. I don't know about that but I do know that I'm reading as fast as I can now.

James H. Lauer Jr.

The Evelyn Wood course improved my reading quality a great deal. I plan to take the entire course again in the future to further improve my reading skills. This I can do without any additional cost.

Alay R. Wilson

I was surprised, happily, that there weren't any gimmicks or tricks. Just a real, solid approach to reading material—and lots of help on study material, too.

Thomas J. Taylor

I use the idea of being able to go back for a free lesson or more if I want. I'm now a lifetime member of the Institute.

Teresa Pringle

I just finished the Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics course, and I have a fascinating experience. I am now one of the faster readers ever to come from a small town.

James M. Cleary

I enjoyed the challenge. Before I started I read 200 words a minute. At the last session I was reading 1000 words a minute.

Reading should be like watching a movie. It should move fast, be engrossing, enjoyable and easy. Its pace should approximate reality. Reading should be—in a word—dynamic.

And to over 450,000 people, reading is dynamic. These easy readers are Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics graduates. In 8 short weeks, they mastered the technique of reading dynamically and recall. They now read an average novel in 2 hours, finish off textbook assignments at 30-75 pages an hour, and read a newspaper in a matter of minutes.

How did they discover this course? Maybe it was because President Kennedy invited Evelyn Wood to the White House to train his top level personnel. Or perhaps they simply read an ad like this one and attended a free lesson.

BEEF BANQUETAnd a good time for all

by Terry Conner

The second annual Hot Stove League beef barbecue last night attracted over 700 people, who came out on a windy night to pledge their dollars and time to see a good ideal become a real idea.

The purpose of the gathering was a college community fund raising program to support youth, college and semi-pro baseball in San Luis Obispo.

One of the New York Yankee all-time great left-handed pitchers, Lefty Gomez, was master of ceremonies of the event, with baseball stars Jim Fregosi, Clyde Wright, Tom Haller, Don Larson and featured speaker Chris Pelokudas (senior umpire for the National League), rubbing elbows with him.

Before Pelokudas took the floor, the other honored guests spoke briefly on behalf of themselves and their teams: Fregosi, "We got another Italian on the team now, so I think the Angels have a good chance of winning the American league pennant," Haller: "The Dodgers could go all the way this year, it wouldn't bother me if the Giants finished third or fourth."

And of course the ball players all had the choice opportunity of riddling Pelokudas about needing glasses.

"Baseball has been a wonderful thing for me," said the veteran umpire, "I've enjoyed every moment that I've spent in this career. I'm in the most honest profession around, and I'm darn proud of it."

Pelokudas continued to reminisce about his career as an umpire from his start in the low classes of the minors up through his induction to the big leagues. He offered advice to both parents and youngsters. "Be respectful of your parents, boys, and mom and dad, don't ever turn your back on your child."

The events of the evening rendered the whole idea a great success, according to organizers of the banquet.
